Class Song

Class of 1944

Words by

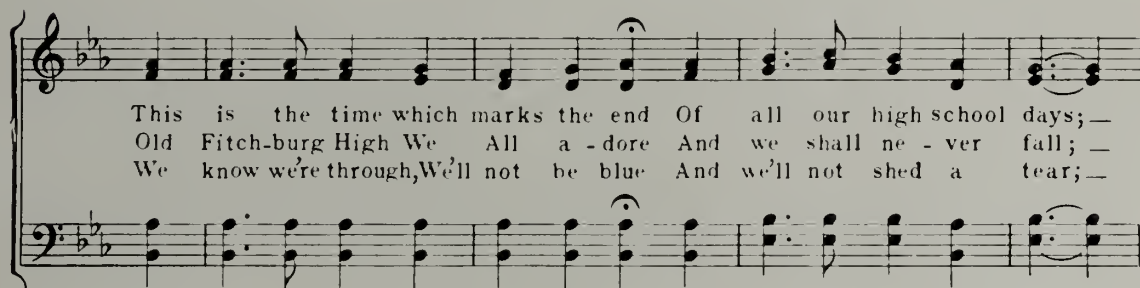

BETTE ERICKSON

Music by

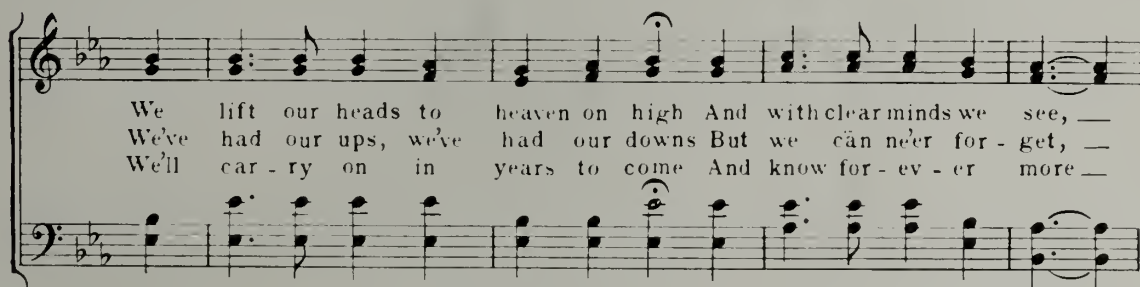

ARTHUR Wm. ELANDER

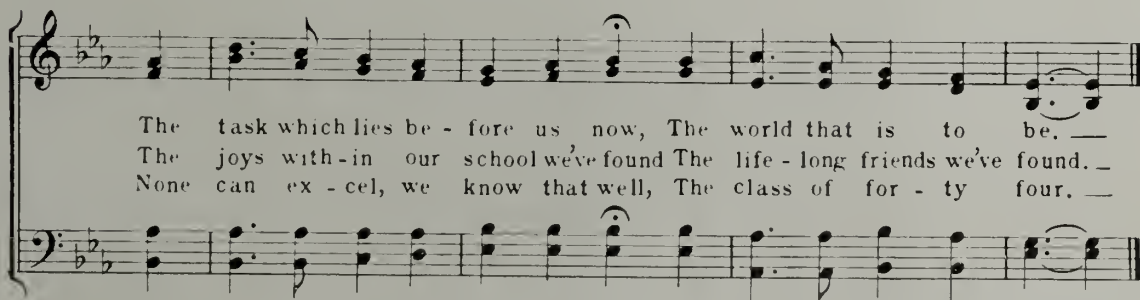

1. Come bow your heads in sol-lemn prayer, As our dear class we praise, —
 2. Oh we're the class of for-ty four, We're each for one and all; —
 3. And so we pull the cur-tain down On twelve long hap-py years; —

This is the time which marks the end Of all our high school days; —
 Old Fitch-burg High We All a-dore And we shall ne-ver fall; —
 We know we're through, We'll not be blue And we'll not shed a tear; —

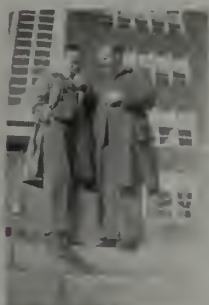

We lift our heads to heaven on high And with clear minds we see, —
 We've had our ups, we've had our downs But we can ne'er for-get, —
 We'll car-ry on in years to come And know for-ev-er more —

The task which lies be-fore us now, The world that is to be, —
 The joys with-in our school we've found The life-long friends we've found, —
 None can ex-cel, we know that well, The class of for-ty four, —

AMERICAN TYPE FOUNDERS Incorporated

Fitchburg, Massachusetts

Fitchburg's labor army, its thousands of workers who daily perform the industrial processes necessary to turn out a magnificent variety of goods of war, are intelligent, alert, inventive, and possessed in good measure of that treasured American trait of initiative.

That is the paramount fact to be remembered when our business, industrial and civic leaders look to the postwar future and hope and plan for conversion of war work into peacetime production for civilian needs.

We repeat: It is a fact. It is not a fancy, a theory, a white rabbit, so to speak, pulled from a silk hat. It is a proved fact. That is what we must remember.

For the record of American Type Founders Incorporated here which surpasses all other records in the country for employee awards for production suggestions that save time and money has completely and thoroughly demonstrated the fact.

ATF workers here excel any other group in the country by an average of one production award for every 14 employees. One in every 14 of the men in these ATF plants have invented or thought out ways of producing goods which save time and money.

Naturally a good share of the credit goes to the management. How do they do it? That is a question you will have to ask Mr. Ferguson or Mr. Stevenson.

But aside from management's part in this record which has brought national acclaim to Fitchburg labor, there is this indisputable fact: The workers themselves have under proper management conditions and under the traditional American way of opportunity for self-expression and initiative, revealed a high degree of adaptability, intelligence and native inventive talent that must be the envy of many another industrial center.

Water cannot be squeezed out of a stone. Nor can the best of management plans extract an average of one successful production improvement for every 14 workers if the men haven't the talent to produce the ideas and prove their practicality and their time-saving and money-saving worth.

This fact should be made the most of by our local civic leaders. The record of ATF workers should be everlastingly held up before two important groups of industrialists: 1) Those who are already located here; and (2) those who may in the future seek a location for new or expanded industrial production.

Fitchburg, the settlement on the upper Nashua that early attracted manufacturing because of the water power, and forged ahead as a centre of superior craftsmanship in precision work with metals, later to achieve leadership in textiles, paper and other products, still prove its adaptability, versatility and initiative.

The very diversification of its industries speaks eloquently for the character and talent of its leadership and its craftsmanship.
